

Resolutions

Army Chief of Staff General Mark A. Milley has laid out three priorities: Readiness, adapting the Army for the future and taking care of troops. The Association of the United States Army shares his goals. However, there is a growing divide between the emerging geopolitical realities confronting the United States and the declining resources provided to the Army by Congress. One of our highest priorities is for Congress and the President to strike a deal to remove the threat of budgetary caps and sequestration cuts before they cause irreversible damage to our national security.
